FLEET NOW ON SIDELINE

Nimitz Predicts Enemy
Will Quit When Going
Gets Too ToughPEARL HARBOR, Oct. 31—Smashed and shattered by the overpowering fury of the United States fleet, what remained of the Japanese imperial fleet was in hiding and licking its wounds today.Newest advices from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz at Pacific fleet headquarters revealed that the staggering losses of the Nip fleet in the second battle of the Philippines mounted to 60 warships sunk or damaged as the result of new blows struck on October 28 by carrier planes from Admiral William F. Halsey's powerful Third Fleet.
A Japanese heavy cruiser, previously damaged, was probably sunk in Manila harbor, the Nimitz communiqué revealed, and another cruiser was damaged, while off Cavite a third cruiser was struck by two 1,000-pound bombs and heavily damaged.

90 Planes Downed

At the same time, 90 Jap planes were shot out of the skies in a furious air battle over Luzon, when the enemy attempted to intercept the attacking Yank planes, and in assaults on Manila airfields and central Philippines bases.Near Cebu, Admiral Nimitz disclosed, our planes scored a hit on a Jap oil tanker, leaving it badly damaged, and also destroyed three cargo ships.Forty-five Jap interceptor planes were shot down over Southern Luzon, the communiqué announced, while 12 Nip fighters and dive bombers were downed trying to attack one of Halsey's carrier groups. In addition, two more enemy planes which appeared over the carriers the next day also were sent flaming into the sea.

Heavy Jap Losses

Not only did the enemy suffer heavy losses in the air, but on the ground as well, especially in raids over Manila.Attacking the airfields in the vicinity of the Philippines' largest city, the American warbirds destroyed 12 planes on the ground and started numerous large fires.The carrier search and patrol planes soaring through the skies over the Cebu region—the same ones which destroyed the three cargo vessels—bagged 19 more Jap planes which tried to intercept.Admiral Nimitz' communiqué indicated there was absolutely no let

Doubted By ChurchillCommons Told End Of War May Not Come
Before 1945 SummerLONDON, Oct. 31—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared today that he could not guarantee an end of the war with Germany before early summer of 1945, but at the same time said victory over the Nazis may come earlier.Churchill's statement was made in an address in which he moved for an extension of life for the present parliament.The Prime Minister asked that parliament remain as constituted for another year. The present body has been in office for a decade."Certainly I cannot predict or still less guarantee an end of the German war before the end of spring or even before early Summer," he said, adding:On military ground alone, Churchill continued, it would not be prudent to assume that a shorter period than 18 months will be required for the final destruction of Japan after the destruction of Hitler.It appeared difficult to believe that the war in Europe could be ended before Christmas or even before Easter although many high military authorities with every means of forming an accurate judgment had expressed themselves more hopefully, he said.But he had no hesitation in declaring, he said, "that it would be a wrongful act unworthy of our country's game to break up the present governing instrument before we know where we are with Hitler's Germany."Suggesting there was no likelihood of a general election seven or nine months from now the Prime Minister then turned to the Pacific war, saying:"On military grounds alone it would not be prudent to assume that a shorter period than 18 months after the destruction of Hitler will be required for the final destruction of the Japanese will or capacity to fight."TOKYO STILL the enemy task force and convoy in waters east of the Philip-today.The communiqué issued by imperial headquarters, whose claims were entirely unsubstantiated, asserted that three aircraft carriers, one cruiser and one transport were sunk and that six aircraft carriers, two battleships, two warships of unknown type were damaged.SALONIKA FALLS

YANKS GET READY TO RAID JAPAN

AMERICAN ENGINEERING UNITS on Leyte are rushing construction of airstrips and within a short time heavy bombers and fighter bombers will be taking off from these fields to blast enemy installations in all sections of the Philippines. Fighter planes have already landed on heavily-repaired enemy airstrips and are carrying out attacks against the Japs. The approximate distances from Leyte to key targets on other islands in the group are shown in the map. (International)Opposing Candidates For Governor Giving
Heavy Verbal PunchesBY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
While the opposing candidates for governor swung their heaviest verbal punches of the entire campaign, Governor Bricker returned to Columbus today after a month-long vice-presidential campaign swing through the West with the declaration that he would not call a special session to lengthen voting hours at the election a week from today.Bricker said that there was no need to call the session because "it (the extension proposal) was up at the last legislature and had been turned down."Meanwhile, the Democrats apparently were not to be accorded the advantage of an Ohio speech by President Roosevelt which they desired to offset the series of speeches Bricker will make boosting the Republican state ticket.The Dems had hoped that Roosevelt would make a major address in Cleveland Saturday night, but the White House indicated that the President would forego a trip to Ohio in favor of a final jaunt through New England.

Candidates Thunder

On the gubernatorial battle-front, Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati, the Republican nominee, charged that the election of his opponent might "result in a Hague-Kelly-Nash-Pendergast machine" in Ohio, while Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, the Democratic candidate, asserted that Ohio in the critical post-war period would "have no need for a ceremonial governor nor a governor who shall be so in name only.""My opponent," said Stewart before a rally at Eaton, "has not even attempted to deny that he is the hand-picked candidate of the New Deal—of Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder, and the other Communist-minded despots.""Is he not then also the candidate of the Hague-Kelly-Nash-Pendergast machine that seeks to keep the New Deal in power? Does he not plan to set a similar machine in Ohio?"Stewart, asserting that Lausche was hand-picked by President

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner of the Philippine commonwealth declared today in a broadcast to the Philippine people that American and Filipino troops had "reconquered practically all of Leyte and Samar" and called on the residents of Leyte to "do their share for the freedom not only of Leyte, but also the entire Philip-facilities of the U. S. signal corps radio on Leyte.Outlining the steps taken so far by Philippine President Sergio Osmena in the re-establishment of the Philippine commonwealth gov-had ordered the reopening of the schools in the liberated areas "as

Romulo said.He announced that Osmena had

POST WAR PROGRAM SET

Hillman Says Committee
Is To Continue As Independent ForceWASHINGTON, Oct. 31—Continuation of the Political Action Committee beyond Nov. 7 indicated today that energies of the group will be thrown behind the CIO's drive for creation of a National Production Council to guide the nation's postwar economy.The belief arises from the announcement of Sidney Hillman, chairman of the Political Action Committee, that the committee will continue as "an independent force" after the election to work for a lasting peace and full, productive employment at home.CIO leaders currently are laying plans for a new and more vigorous campaign to project the wartime labor-management committee plan into the reconversion and postwar periods and Hillman's group may spearhead the drive.

To Continue Fight

Labor lost its fight for establishment of the National Production Council during consideration of demobilization legislation, but plans to redouble its efforts at the new session of congress. Officials believe V-E Day will illustrate the need for such economic coordination and provide strong support for the production council proposal.Ted Silvey, chairman of the CIO's reconversion committee, described the council as a program to put "war production methods" into peacetime operation; to, in effect, place a floor under industrial production and thereby guarantee full employment and a market for such production.

Planning Board

Established along lines similar to the War Labor Board, the National Production Council would be composed of management, labor and public representatives with agriculture permitted to sit in on problems directly affecting farmers.The National Council would create individual production councils for each industry and these,
in turn, would set up regional groups. A program board, financed by the government, would determine national needs and production requirements and they would be placed in effect through the various councils.Supporters of the Production Council proposal are convinced that President Roosevelt's prediction of sixty million peacetime jobs cannot be realized without such production planning.CHEER ON WAY

Army nurses in New Guinea don't know it yet, but the items they requested from Lana Turner were in the mail today.The film star went into action fast when she received the following appeal written on captured Japanese stationery:"If you won't think us tree-happy, as we probably are, we sure suits, bright colors preferred.

We've been over here for 15

buted by a Japanese officer who is patients."Lana scoured the stores and bought a dozen swim-suits of the proper sizes—the brightest and gayest she could find.Jap Premier Admits Yanks Bringing About

Unfavorable SituationBY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Japanese Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, in one of the most forthright admissions of Nippon's plight, said today that United States offensive moves in the Pacific had brought about a situation which "has been regrettably unfavorable for us."Acknowledging that American material strength is at least 10 times greater than that of Japan, Koiso said that from the time that Yank marines invaded Guadalcanal and the Americans forced Nipponese withdrawal from that part of the Pacific, Japan had been placed in a "passive position."Although half-heartedly clinging to the claim that victories were scored in the recent actions off
Formosa and in the Philippines, Koiso admitted that Japan's real successes were scored only in the preliminary stages of the war prior to Guadalcanal.He spoke to a mass rally at Osaka in a call for greater production of material by the Japanese on the home front.This production he said in his address, broadcast by the Tokyo radio and recorded by the FCC, had "fallen short of expectations."Koiso declared pointedly that "officers and men had to die for their nation because we did not send them sufficient materials.""Ever since that time," he said in reference to the smashing of the Japs from Guadalcanal, "we have been placed in a passive position. Despite the fact that the brilliant and dauntless imperial forces have created fear in the hearts of the enemy and often dealt a mortal blow, the situation has been regrettably unfavorable to us.""We were forced to withdraw gradually and many heroes died in the southern seas as a shield for the protection of their nation as they grit their teeth with mortification....""We have no words to express our sorrow and regret to the heroic souls of our officers and men, for they have had to die for their nation because we did not send them sufficient materials."His audience was told that Japan is engaged in a "life or death struggle" in which there is no hope of a compromise peace.In references to the recent air and sea battles, Koiso reiterated Tokyo propaganda claims of naval "successes" off Formosa and the Philippines, but admitted that we did not win this victory easily."We should not forget," he said,
"the fact that we have lost several warships and, in addition to this, there were many that did not return to their base."He warned that the U. S. fleet still has plenty of warships and men, and said specifically that
"the enemy still has a considerable fleet in Leyte bay, while to the rear he still maintains large fleets of battleships and other craft as well as many troops."HITLER LIKELY TO PAY VISIT
TO WEST FRONTLONDON, Oct. 31—The possibility that Hitler is likely to make a personal visit to the western front in an attempt to hearten his armies and the German populace was reported today by the diplomatic writer of the London Daily Sketch.The first hint that the Reichsfuhrer might be planning a so-called "security visit," it was explained, stemmed from a Dutch underground report that members of Hitler's bodyguard had arrived at Amsterdam to establish temporary headquarters which the Nazis leader is believed planning to use.His purpose in appearing, it was said, will give "proof" he still is actively directing the war.The Daily Mail meanwhile carried a Madrid dispatch reported that Nazi Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz acknowledged that Germany now is incapable of launching a U-boat campaign which could in any way influence the course of the war. He is said to have admitted that the North Sea has become the cemetery of German U-boats since Atlantic bases were lost.

Limited Nature—Reds
Roaring AheadBy International News Service British Second Army troops today reached the river Maas in pursuit of a broken German army retreating in Holland under impact of a terrific Allied offensive thrust.The Germans pulled up stakes in Southwestern Holland and began a mass retreat that promises early validation of the port of Antwerp as a great supply base for millions of Allied troops awaiting the order for a general push into Nazi Germany.Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles Christopher Dempsey's British Second Army forces reached the Maas in a rapid thrust north from captured Cap-pelle, and converging columns now are closing in on the German escape bridge at Geertruidenberg.Second Army patrols are less than 1,000 yards from the latter town and the escape road leading to the bridge is probably under fire.

Battle Won

While spokesmen at Gen. Dwight
D. Eisenhower's headquarters confirmed the general German withdrawal toward the Maas (Meuse) river, a Reuter correspondent with Lieut. Gen. Dempsey's Second Army said:"Not only has the battle for Southwest Holland been won, but the battle for the important supply port of Antwerp has also been won.""The roads to the north are black with German vehicles joining in the processions of retreat."
German General Van Zangen's broken 15th Army in the Netherlands is fleeing so fast that Allied forces chasing them along a 30-mile front appear to have lost contact, one battlefield dispatch said.

Mass Retreat

Flight of the Germans to the Moerdijk bridge and to ferry escape routes into Central Holland has created scenes reminiscent of the German retreat across France.
"They are going back in droves," one dispatch said. "They are even using perambulators among the conglomeration of transport to get themselves and their equipment away."A spokesman at British Second Army headquarters said, however:
"There is no sign of a rout yet—just an orderly retreat."Elements of six German divisions were reported still south of the river and attempting to place that barrier between themselves and the Allies.Climaxing some of the toughest battling since the Normandy cam-

NIP LOSSES IN SUNK, DAMAGED SHIPS NOW 60

Three Additional Cruisers In Manila Plastered By U. S. Airmen

up on the part of the United States forces to win and hold complete control of the Western Pacific and now to keep the invasion route to China free and unmenaced by the enemy.

Prior to Admiral Nimitz' latest communique on the smashing new strikes, he had disclosed that at least 58 warships of the Japanese navy had been sunk or damaged, adding that the total possibly would rise as additional reports were received at headquarters.

He termed the great victory "overwhelming," while Admiral Halsey predicted that final capitulation of the Japs may be hastened by the history making triumph of the Navy.

Long known for his contempt of Japanese fighting forces, Adm. Halsey predicted the Japanese will quit "when the going gets too rough."

"I've always been one of the few people," he told Philip G. Reed, International News Service war correspondent, who has been aboard his flagship, "who believe Japan will quit when the going gets too rough."

"I think the industrialists will not stomach the complete destruction of their factories and plants. They will lead the Japanese people to overthrow the militarists, always, of course, with the idea that this is just their first war."

He also sounded a stern note of warning to the American people.

"I hope to God," he declared fervently, "our people won't fail for it and let them off easy if they do try that stunt."

As a result of the catastrophic defeat handed the Jap fleet by the U. S. Pacific fleet, Adm. Halsey declared Japan's sea force will be incapable of anything but suicidal actions for months to come.

It was pointed out that even before the walloping handed the Jap fleet by Halsey's Third Fleet and Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet, Japan's shipbuilding and naval yard facilities were taxed to the utmost, and the repair of damaged warships has become a difficult problem.

"How, where and when they can effect repairs on damaged ships which may eventually reach port will be a very serious problem to solve," Adm. Halsey said.

Here is the latest score of the enemy's losses in the tremendous naval battle, according to Admiral Nimitz:

Against these devastating losses the American forces lost the light aircraft carrier Princeton, two escort carriers, two destroyers and one destroyer escort.

The majority of officers and men aboard the Princeton were rescued, but "considerable casualties" were reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the loss of other ships.

PEACE PARLEY UNDER WAY AT LOCAL CHURCH

The Pickaway county peace conference sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches opened at 2 p. m. Tuesday in St. Philip's Episcopal church in Circleville.

Three speakers from Columbus were to talk and lead the discussions at the afternoon and evening session, which is set for 7:30 p. m.

Rev. Clarence Swearingen, pastor of the First Methodist church of Circleville is county director of the conference.

ESCAPED BIS BOYS RETURNED DUE TO PRANK

Four escaped inmates, accused of destruction of property around Darbyville, were back in the institution Tuesday.

They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Vern Poutious and Probate Officer John Kern Monday afternoon near Darbyville and later returned to Lancaster by BIS officials.

Deputy Poutious said the boys took a tractor belonging to Harry Morris and attached it to a house trailer owned by Milt Fullin. They were seen several times in the vicinity of Darbyville and finally abandoned the outfit on a side road. He said the trailer was damaged extensively but the tractor was not damaged.

He said the quartet, Thomas Abrams, 17, Buffalo, N. Y., Howard Elmer Reynolds, 16, Lancaster, Charles Joseph O'Brian, 17, Batavia, N. Y., and Delbert Raymond Grandstaff, 18, Cambridge, escaped from the institution Sunday.

More instances of destructive Halloween pranks were reported Monday night. On the Clark's run road at the Edward Howard farm fodder was piled in the road, gates taken from nearby fences and piled on top, and a big bonfire started.

HERBERT JOHNSTON HURT IN COLLISION OF AUTOS

Herbert Johnston, 66, of 349 East Franklin street, suffered head injuries in a collision at West Main street and Western avenue Monday at 5:10 p. m.

Johnston was treated at Berger hospital where he was taken in a Mader ambulance by Dr. Lloyd Jones for a slight concussion and cuts on his scalp. His condition was reported improved Tuesday and he was to be discharged from the hospital during the day.

Patrolman George Green reported Johnston was driving east on Main street, traveling south on Western avenue. Left side of Johnston's car was damaged and slight damage to the front of Haynes' car resulted.

pelle advanced to within 1,000 yards of the Maas. Polish troops advanced north of Breda to the Mark river.

Canadian troops operating on the west coast to within 2,000 yards of Steenberg.

A spokesman at headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower revealed meanwhile that British and American forces who quelled German counter-attacks at the east side of the Dutch salient in an effort to stem the Maas drive had made slight gains in fresh Allied offensives.

The British fought their way into the northern tip of the town of Liesel and into the woods north of the town.

Fighting also continued in the vicinity of Meijel.

Huns Stopped

It was emphasized that the German counter-attacks were no small affair, but a strong though vain effort to ease Allied pressure south of the Maas.

Farther south on the Western front, action was limited. Lt. Gen. George Patton's Third Army cleared the Germans from Malzeres Les Metz, six miles north of Metz. The villages of Jeannenil and Bru, east of Rambervillers, were freed by other Allied troops. Patrolling was the main activity from Aachen, Germany, to Lunenburg, France.

Brazilian and Indian troops spearheaded the flight against the Germans in Northern Italy. Operating with the American Fifth Army, the South American units captured a 2800-foot mountain and the town of Calomini on the Fifth Army's left flank. The Indians, serving with Britain's famed Eighth Army, established a bridgehead across the Ronco river. The crossing was made near Meldola, a few miles below Forli on the main Rimini-Bologna highway.

Surprise Attack

The Allied Mediterranean communique also revealed that American troops of the Fifth Army captured a hundred German prisoners in a surprise attack north of the Prato-Bologna road.

The United States destroyers Plunkett and Gleaves joined British and French naval craft in shelling Nazi shore guns and installations along the Franco-Italian border.

On the eastern front, the Russian offensive threatened to engulf the Hungarian capital of Budapest. Moscow reported the Red Army captured 14 towns in Hungary and Czechoslovakia, pushing the Germans back to the Tisa river. The Russians, according to a late German news flash, appeared as far as the vital rail center of Kecsakemet, 50 miles southeast of Budapest, in the Hungarian drive.

Allied aircraft continued to lash out against the Nazis. Royal Air Force bombers blasted Cologne, 30 miles behind the western front, for the sixth time in three days. Other Allied planes, based in the Mediterranean area, hammered priority targets in the Balkans and behind enemy lines in Italy.

DIVORCE GRANTED

Divorce was granted the plaintiff in the case of Ralph V. Diltz against Norma Maxine Diltz, a minor, and her father, Frank Woodward, according to an entry in common pleas court Tuesday. Gross neglect was charged. The defendant was restored to her maiden name.

Opposing Candidates For Governor Giving Heavy Verbal Punches

Roosevelt as the New Deal candidate for governor or, declared that the Democratic candidate's "boasted independence is just an alibi for his proven inability to get along with the legislative branch of government, and an excuse for turning his back on his own party within the state to enable him to dance when Washington pulls the strings."

"He has the effrontery to boast of such independence, with the open inference that he intends to become dictator of Ohio, subject not to his legislature or the pledges of his state party platform, but subject only to the political exigencies of the Master in Washington," Stewart added.

Pointing out that 19 counties have no Democratic candidates for the state house of Representatives, Stewart said that it was "mathematically certain that the shall preside at meetings of the council . . . he shall have no power of veto . . . He shall be recognized as head of the city for all ceremonial purposes."

"On the other hand," Lausche said, "The charter of Cleveland, fixing the responsibilities and obligations of the mayor, provides for the so-called strong mayor set-up."

Manages City

Lausche then quoted the duties of the Cleveland mayor according to the Cleveland charter and added:

"It will thus be seen that the mayor of Cleveland combines in himself all the functions of the city manager and those that are exercised by the titular and ceremonial mayor of Cincinnati, with the one exception, and that is to preside in the city council."

"It may be that the thinking of my opposition is that the arrangement that prevails in Cincinnati may be generally acceptable in the state, the parallel being that, if elected, my opponent shall be the titular and ceremonial governor, while the actual manager and administrator of the state's public finances and public business will be the political boss of Cincinnati, (State Republican Chairman) Ed Schorr."

The 1944 campaign motion picture, "The Spokesman of the Future" is scheduled to be shown throughout the afternoon and evening, Thursday, November 2, at the Pickaway County Republican Campaign Headquarters in Circleville, under the auspices of the G. O. P. Booster's Club of Pickaway County.
The picture opens with some beautiful scenes of the White House and Washington. This sequence carries us into some scenes of the New York skyline, then to the streets of New York, and from there to Dewey being sworn in as governor of New York State by Judge Lehman. Following this are a few scenes of Dewey's racket-busting days foretelling what he was to do as Governor.
There are some agricultural scenes that are suitably expressed in text and also some production scenes of workers in connection with his improvements of the Worker's Compensation Act.
There are a few scenes reminding all of us of his efforts in connection with the U. S. O. From there the picture goes to scenes of the Governor at the Mackinac Conference, to the convention where he was nominated for the Presidency and thence, to the Governors' Conference in St. Louis. There are also attractive scenes where he and Mrs. Dewey were host to Governor and Mrs. Bricker at the executive mansion in Albany, N. Y.
In between the foregoing scenes is a sequence of the Dewey family in Pawling and the Governor with his mother in Owosso, Michigan.
The picture is in sound and of twelve-minute duration.

WAR AND KNOWLEDGE
THE conquering Russians, rolling westward, have reached East Prussia, the most eastern part of Germany. That is an event which might induce Germans in general to do a little thinking—if they are still capable of thought after listening to Adolf Hitler for a dozen years.

Danzig, capital of East Prussia, is the city where the greatest German thinker, Immanuel Kant, lived and died without ever going more than 20 miles away from home. He didn't need to travel, because he found nearly everything he wanted to know in books, or within his own mind. Among the things he extracted from that mind was a "Theory of the Heavens" which explained the formation of the Universe by the Nebular Hypothesis. This is the theory now universally accepted, that tiny particles scattered through space slowly drew together to produce solid matter. He could learn more just by sitting and thinking than other men could learn out of books. And strange to say, for a German, he was usually right.

As a matter of present interest, he wrote an essay in the year of 1795 in which he explained the need of lasting peace, with a League of Nations in control.

THOSE HATS!
WHETHER women's hats of the current mode are beautiful or ugly is not for men to say. In any case, those of the current mode are unusually interesting—and that is probably the main purpose of feminine headgear. Other women, and men, look at them, and many turn for a second look.

By the time the bystander has turned, however, for that second look at the intriguing headgear, he is foiled. For current style calls for such an extremely small hat that it is not very conspicuous at any distance. By the time an interesting specimen has passed by, nothing is visible in most cases except the back hair.

For some reason or other, which may or may not be esthetic, the so-called hat is generally bunched up in front and hanging down over the wearer's forehead, just leaving her with enough optical freedom to see her way about. The feathers and ribbons and one thing or another, often delicate and attractive themselves, seem continually about to tumble off. Thus inquisitive males are inclined to view them with a curious fascination as regards their stability. Which, to be sure, may be the basic idea back of the arrangement. A man wouldn't know.

Do you remember when people said that as soon as the fighting got to German soil, the Germans would give up?

CONCERNING THE WAR'S END
A lot of people have tried their hand at predicting the war's end, including this columnist. Some were high-up officials, some private prognosticators. Some were pretty good, some pretty bad. Here is a cross-section:

Representative Earl Wilson, Indiana Republican, in June, 1943, got an average compilation from 140 Congressmen that the war would be over in October, 1944.

Admiral William F. Halsey, who predicted "complete, absolute defeat for the Axis in 1943," was asked again, on Dec. 13, 1943, and "wasn't so sure when the war would be over."

General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the Air Forces, on Feb. 14, 1943, predicted "the German war will be over by Feb. 14, 1944."

Jim Farley, on Jan. 20, 1943, "The war will be over this year."

General Levin Campbell, Jan. 15, 1943—"The war will be over in about two years. Artillery will gain as a factor in the war."

Herbert Hoover, Nov. 6, 1943—"Certainly we are now in the last stages of the war."

Raymond Moley, Nov. 8, 1943, predicted end of the war "earlier than envisioned by the Administration."

Senator O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, Jan. 2, 1944—"The most conservative Swedish observers do not believe that Germany can endure beyond next June."

Sun Fo, president of the legislative Yuan of China, Jan. 2, 1944—"Germany will be knocked out between the Spring and Summer of this year."

Henry Ford, March 20, 1944, predicted war would be over in two months.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee, July 21, 1943—"The Red Army will be in Berlin in sixty days. The war will be over on all fronts in six months."

Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, July 28, 1944—"I don't see how Germany can last through the rest of this year."

Congressman May, Democrat, Kentucky, July 28, 1944—"Germany will capitulate by Dec. 1."

Under Secretary of War Patterson, July 29, 1944—"We are now entering the beginning of the last phase of the war in Europe."

General Chennault, July 21, 1944—"I think Germany will be defeated within this year. Japan will be defeated six months afterwards."

General Montgomery, July 17, 1944—"If we do our stuff properly, we shall have Germany out of the war this year."

Congressman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, June 17, 1944—"There is general belief that the German Armies will collapse not later than the first or second week of September."

Winston Churchill, June 19, 1944—"The months of this Summer may, by the victories of this Allied campaign, bring full success to the cause of freedom." General Eisenhower, bidding farewell to Algiers, Dec. 27, 1943, predicted that the Allies would win the European war in 1944.

DIET AND HEALTH
THE ADVANCES OF MODERN SURGERY

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
THE "GOLDEN AGE" of surgery has been said to be the period after surgical anesthesia was discovered, roughly about one hundred years ago, when to that triumph was added the discovery of how to prevent germ infections in surgical incisions—asepsis—which was roughly about fifty years ago.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

These three great problems of surgery were once said to be hemorrhage, anesthesia and asepsis. The control of hemorrhage was solved long ago by doughty old Ambrose Pare in the middle of the sixteenth century, by the use of the ligature. With that discovered and anesthesia and asepsis added, the surgeon could explore any part of the human anatomy without causing the patient any excruciating immediate pain and without leaving him bleated to death and without leaving him infected with germs to suppurate to death.

Then began the golden age of surgery—about 1800. It lasted about thirty years. It was the age of development of great mechanical dexterity. All the classical operative procedures were developed during that time—how to remove the appendix, how to drain the gallbladder, how to remove parts of the stomach and intestines—how even to enter the chest and take out part of the lung without its collapsing and to sew up a wounded heart without stopping its beating, to expose the very brain itself, to remove organs which were making trouble, such as the thyroid gland, and the spleen, to remove tumors and infected organs anywhere. All this was standardized so it could be done with the greatest economy and the maximum of safety and minimum of damage to tissues. It was indeed the golden age.

The New Surgery
It seemed to many surgeons of my apprenticeship days that there was nothing left for them to learn. Put there was and the new surgery is learning it and advancing to build more safeguards around the surgical patient.

The watchword of the new surgery is physiology. The old surgery was anatomical—structural. It had learned to rip open and nail together again a human being very much as if he were a frame house. And indeed I am inclined to think that many of the surgeons I

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
I was cross by that time too. I was cross by the fact that I said something which emerged as only an exasperated mutter and went to the door. No one was in the hall; Alexis, Maud and Nicky had vanished. I hurried to the stairs and just at the landing was Bevens (in a long white bathrobe, vaguely Ku-Klux in character) ascending and puffing. I said, "Come and help me. Hurry!"

He didn't question. Not even when we arrived in the linen closet and there was, so to speak, the young master stretched full length on the floor. Full length, that is, except that Drue had lifted him a little so she held his head against her breast and the towel pressed against the ugly bleeding bruise on his temple.

Bevens said something that really did sound like "Tush-tush" and stooped over. "Take his feet, Nurse, please," he requested efficiently.

So we got Craig back to bed. By the time we had him covered warmly and hot water bottles around him to ward off pneumonia, he was completely unconscious again. Bevens, still without a question, helped us. It took time—all of it had taken time.

At last everything we could do was done, and Bevens looked at me. "They want you in the study, Miss Keate," he said.

Drue looked at me quickly, so her little white cap jerked toward me. "Very well," I straightened my cap. I said to Drue, "I won't be long."

I didn't give her a chance to say anything but hurried away, following Bevens. I had reached the landing of the stairs just below the stained glass window when I remembered that Drue's hypodermic syringe was still in my pocket.

Well, they weren't waiting in search me, those people waiting in the library, but I hid the syringe. There was a kind of ledge at the bottom of the long, arched window and a funeral but very thick fern stood there. Bevens turned around the landing and started ponderously down the remaining flight of steps and I thrust the syringe under the thick ferns. I hadn't time to do more. Bevens was already aware of my pause and starting to turn majestically around. Feeling as if I'd hidden the body, I moved hurriedly away from the fern and went on down the steps.

We crossed the hall and I was vaguely aware of two or three people huddled together at the entrance to a passage beyond the stairs that went to the rear of the house—two women servants, I thought, and the stocky, thickest man who had met us at the train.

The library door was open. Alexis was pacing up and down at the other side of the great desk, taking a few steps, whirling, returning. Anna stood beside the door; she was huddled into a blue, faded bathrobe and her blue eyes were staring from a colorless face.

The others were grouped around Conrad Brent's corpse on the couch and Dr. Chivery had arrived. He knelt beside the body, his back toward me. Maud was on the other side of the sofa, her face a rigid, yellowish mask with two bright eyes that watched Chivery. Peter was there too, looking thoughtfully downward and, as I entered, Nicky turned away from the sofa abruptly, walked around the long desk and flung himself into Conrad's armchair.

Alexis saw me first. She paused as she turned to kick her short crimson train out of the way, looked at me and said, "Here's the nurse. Did you find Craig? Where was he? What happened?"

"He's all right. He's in bed again. Miss Cable is with him." Maud glanced at me swiftly. Dr. Chivery got up a little awkwardly, dusted his knees absently and looked around in a bewildered way. "I—I wasn't expecting Conrad's death just now," he said. "Well, I'm afraid it's all over." He glanced irresolutely at Maud.

Nicky said, "It must have been quick. None of us knew he was having an attack." Claude Chivery passed an uneasy hand across his small chin. "He had some medicine," he said. "He always took it for these attacks. I suppose this time..." He leaned over the body and seemed to be searching about it and the sofa. "Well, it isn't here. The box of pills, I mean. It must have taken him so quickly he didn't have time to get the medicine. He's had this heart condition, you know, for years."

"We knew," said Alexis. Dr. Chivery glanced at me. "You found him?" "Yes. He was dead. I could do nothing for him."

He looked at my wrist watch and seemed to wait a little tentatively for me to elaborate on my statement. As I didn't on the principle of least said soonest mended, he nodded. "Ah—yes. I was afraid he would go like this."

Maud said stiffly, "His medicine was digitalis, wasn't it, Claude?" Again Dr. Chivery glanced uncertainly at his wife. "Why, yes, of course. Everyone knew it. He kept it in the drawer of his desk, over there."

It was natural for all of us to glance at the desk. It was natural, I suppose, for Alexis to reach out and pull open a drawer—the top right-hand drawer—as she did. "It isn't here," she said. "He must have it somewhere about him."

"But I..." Dr. Chivery shrugged. "Perhaps I overlooked it." He turned back to Conrad Brent's body. There was a silence that had a quality of question that was still, unspoken. We all watched while he searched swiftly.

"No, it isn't here." He straightened up at last. Perplexity struggled with a queer kind of new uneasiness on his ever uneasy face. Maud said, "That was digitalis. Everyone knew where he kept it. Claude—Alexis—if anyone removed that box of pills it would have been murder. Murder..."

So there it was again, I thought almost angrily to myself—murder. Doggedly persistent. But that's all I thought just then,

For Tuesday, October 31 BY A STRICT regulation of rules and codes, according to accepted tenets and methods of conventional ways of life, there may be some definite progress made through industry, application and persistent efforts against odds. Not only hard work but a sane, balanced and properly governed management of the impulses, emotions and temper should eventually bear solid fruit. Property and finances may be stabilized, and opposition from influential sources may be deftly and astutely handled. Diplomacy and not strife should win.

MANY A HOPEFUL attempt to make a lead-throwing end play proves a failure because the declarer threw a defender in before making thorough preparation first. In the case of a No Trump lead-throwing play, it is necessary to strip the victimized opponent of everything except the suit or suits you want him to lead into your tenace or tenaces. In the case of such a play at a suit contract, sometimes the stripping process must consist of getting rid of certain suits in your own hand and the dummy, so that the defender will give you a ruff-and-discard if he makes certain returns.

You couldn't want a better example of the desirability of a No Trump game contract for nine tricks instead of a minor suit bid for 11 tricks, but that is neither here nor there. The point that really counted was the way that South diagnosed the situation properly as calling for a lead-throwing end-play—and then bawled it up.

He won the diamond K lead with the dummy's A, cleared hostile trumps with the A, led to the heart A, back to the club K, scored the heart K for a diamond discard and then decided he was ready to throw West in. He led the diamond 8, which West won with the 10. The latter returned the heart Q, which South had to ruff with one of dummy's clubs. His end-play effort was wasted, for West had not led back a spade to make the K good, or a diamond, which would have furnished a spade discard while dummy ruffed. By firing back a heart, West had thwarted South.

West would have been made helpless, however, if, before the diamond was led, he had ruffed his own last heart in the dummy. Then, when West was in with the diamond, any red card return would have brought a ruff and discard, assuring the game.

Yanks and Philippine Guerrillas Never Quit Government Activity in Pre-Election Doldrums

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Tokyo radio, just before American invasion of Leyte, complained again that "American guerrillas" were busy in the Philippines cutting Japanese lines of communication.

The disclosure by the enemy that resistance still existed in the commonwealth after nearly three years of Jap occupation indicates that some of the greatest stories of the war may be told now that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces have invaded the islands.

At the time of the surrender of Corregidor it was known that American and native units were operating boldly, especially in the northern half of important Mindanao island in the southern Philippines.

The Allied raiders often swept down out of the hills and jungles to hit isolated enemy outposts and to ambush Jap columns. Moros undoubtedly played a part in those actions. They are pledged to fight side by side with the Americans until the Japs are ousted.

A LOT OF THINGS are being kept on ice in Washington until after the election when a definite pickup in governmental activity is anticipated.

If F. D. R. wins there are such major questions as wages, the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan, etc., awaiting action. Moreover, F. D. R. is expected to move swiftly to set up the accomplishments of his administration, both in the domestic and foreign fields, for posterity.

If Dewey wins Washington will be transformed into a beehive of activity as preparations are made for turning things over to a new regime. A conference or conferences between F. D. R. and Dewey probably would be necessary.

THE DISTRIBUTION OF MILLIONS of copies of an anti-Roosevelt address by Rep. Fred E. Busbey (R.) of Illinois at government expense may lead to restrictions on use of the congressional franking privilege.

A House investigating committee, led by Rep. C. P. Anderson (D.) of New Mexico may recommend such action.

The largest number of the speeches were mailed free under the frank of Busbey, 1,686,000 in all. Others:

Reps. George J. Bates of Massachusetts, 122,000; Roy O. Woodruff of Michigan, 100,000; Daniel A. Reed of New York, 300,000; Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut, 50,000; Henry O. Talle of Iowa, 50,000; Phil A. Bennett of Missouri, 100,000; Carrier of Kentucky, 51,000; John Taber of New York, 210,000; Ed Rowe of Ohio, 195,000; Harold Knutson of Minnesota, 75,000; Melvin J. Maas of Minnesota, 25,000; Senator E. H. Moore of Oklahoma, 52,000.

PRICES COMMISSIONER COPLAND, of Australia, startled Washington correspondents at a news conference by relating some of the food prices prevalent in his country:

First class steak, 30 cents a pound; butter, 26 cents; eggs, 25 to 32 cents a dozen; lamb, 20 cents a pound.

Then a newsmen asked Copland about Australian wages. The average weekly earnings in the country "down under" are only $20 a week, the University of Melbourne professor said.

He agreed that the price control assignment in the United States was "a superhuman job." Reporters were shocked when Copland said he had met OPA Chief Chester Bowles and that "he's full of beans, isn't he?" Newsmen later learned that it was an Aussie term of admiration for Bowles' personality, drive and ability.

Better ask for Madame Frances Perkins instead. The little-known "Mr. Perkins" is Paul C. Wilson and he married the present secretary of labor—who goes by her maiden name of Frances Perkins—in September, 1913.

HOME COMING, DAD'S NIGHT SET FOR FRIDAY

Tigers Wind Up Home Season With Grove City 11 As The Opposition

Circleville high school Tigers are working hard this week in preparation for a big week end.

Friday night the Tigers meet Grove City in a game that is important from many angles. The game has been designated as homecoming and "Dad's Night."

It is the last home game of the season. Special events have been planned preceding the game and during the half, Virgil Cress, faculty manager of athletics, announced Tuesday.

The special program is being arranged by the Stogie Club. Several of the CHS gridders are still favoring bruises and bumps suffered in the Greenfield game last week. Most of them are expected to be able to play Friday night but Leon Sims' leg is still "ouchy" and he may not be able to get at top speed.

The Grove City club does not have as good a record as the local eleven but has been playing some strong teams and is expected to furnish plenty of opposition for the homecoming contest.

Last year the Tigers lost a 16-13 thriller at Grove City and several members of this season's team who were there are determined to get revenge for that defeat.

Following the game here Friday night the Tigers go to Washington C. H. next week for a South Central league contest which winds up the season.

Victories in their last two starts would give the Tigers a 7-1 record and that is just what they are going to try their best to accomplish.

YOUNG BACK IN UNIFORM

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 31—Claude "Buddy" Young, Illinois University's budding all-American halfback, who was stunned in the Notre Dame game Saturday by a kick on the head, was back on the squad today apparently none the worse for his injury. He suffered a slight concussion and was unable to play the last half of the game. Johnny Orr, who was kicked in the ribs, also was back in the line-up. The Illini are idle this week-end.

HOOSIER TACKLE OUT

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 31—Art Lehman and Carl Neston fought today for the tackle job on the Indiana football team made vacant by the absence of Joe Kempf who was injured in the Northwestern game. The game coming up Saturday with Ohio State will be a crucial one for the Hoosiers as a loss will practically eliminate them from a chance for the conference title.

IRISH LOSE END

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 31—Coach Ed McKeever of the Notre Dame Irish said today he had lost Mike Davlin, 16-year-old freshman end who was outstanding last Saturday in the game against Illinois. An x-ray examination in Chicago disclosed he had suffered a chipped bone in his knee and that he probably would be out for the remainder of the season.

BOB WIESE COPS SCORING LEAD IN LAST GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—Capt. Bob Wiese and Halfback Bob Nussbaumer, both of the University of Michigan, were at the top of the rankings today in western football conference statistics in the scoring and rushing departments, respectively.

That they will be overtaken is a certainty, for they completed their 1944 collegiate football activities last Saturday when Michigan overran the Purdue Boilermakers, 40 to 14, at Ann Arbor.

Wiese ran his scoring total to 42 points in the Purdue game, taking the lead from "Buddy" Young of Illinois, who had been idle in conference competition for two weeks. Young has a total of 30 points.

Nussbaumer and Ed Cody of Purdue are tied for third place in scoring with 24 points each.

Nussbaumer gained 151 yards against Purdue and raised his total for the season to 379 yards. Wiese took over second place in rushing, adding 75 yards to increase his yardage total for the season to 311.

Bob Hoernschmeyer of Indiana forged ahead of Johnny Yungwirth of Northwestern to lead in passing.

WALTER MAILS IS GIVEN DISCHARGE FROM MARINES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31—Marine Sgt. Walter "The Great" Mails, one of the better pitchers in big league baseball a couple of decades back, received his honorable discharge from the leather-necks today—and will probably go back to baseball.

Walters, who for the past several years was public relations man for the San Francisco Seals, enlisted in the Marines in August, 1942, and even though he was in his fifties at the time, he went through "boot camp," along with the rest of the rookies.

He wanted combat duty, he asked for it and he pleaded for it, but it was decided his talents for recruiting were too good to let pass, and Mails spent his time traveling up and down the coast securing potential recruits from high schools.

PETE CAWTHON RESIGNS AS BROOKLYN GRID COACH

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—The mercurial nature of professional football is clearly demonstrated for the thousandth time today with the resignation of Pete Cawthon as coach of the Brooklyn Tigers. Pete's team lost its fifth straight game Sunday, and from the moment the Boston Yankees booted out a 17 to 14 victory on Augie Lio's field goal, Cawthon was a dead duck.

HAMBERG ON SIDELINES

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 31—The Navy football team received shot of bad news today when Coach Oscar Hagberg said it was doubtful that Hal Hamberg, the team's triple-threat halfback would be able to play against Notre Dame in Baltimore Saturday. Hamberg injured his leg last Saturday in leading his team to a 26-0 victory over Penn.

New Philadelphia made an impressive entrance into the top 10 by taking over seventh place in the wake of a 20-0 win over twice-beaten Bellaire. The Quakers are undefeated in six games.

Although Tide, Mansfield's once-beaten Tigers retained their eighth-place ranking, while Toledo Libbey advanced a notch to tenth place in outpointing Toledo Central Catholic, 35-7.

And Cleveland Shaw, another newcomer, completed the line-up. Shaw, defeated only by Lakewood in seven starts, decisioned Lorain, 46-6, in its latest outing.

RICH SMALLEY GETS FURLOUGH; HEADS FOR U. S.

County Soldiers In 37th Division Getting Break After 28 Months

WITH THE 37th INFANTRY DIVISION SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA—(Special)—Seven seasoned veterans of two major campaigns today said, "So long Rich, and the best of luck to you," to First Sergeant Richard W. Smalley.

After having served 28 months of overseas duty he is being sent back to the States on the Army's rotation furlough policy for reassignment.

Before embarking from this jungle island Smalley said, "I consider myself very lucky to have been drawn to go home. I have enjoyed working with you men and will always remember the tough and good times that we had together."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Smalley who live at 119 Mingo street, Circleville. He has been in the army since the National Guards mobilized into federal service in October of 1940. Prior to that Smalley was employed by the John W. Eshelman and Sons Company.

"Things won't be the same without you here, Smalley," said Warrant Officer Raymond Greer of Circleville. He is the assistant battalion supply officer of this medium field artillery unit.

Greer's wife, Lois A., resides at 1015 1/2 Heyl avenue, Columbus, Ohio. Previous to his enlistment he was working with the State Highway Department.

Local Fighters

The other Circleville men in this field artillery outfit are: Technical Sergeant John Jenkins, Staff Sergeant Ralph Friley, Corporal David Walker, Private First Class Truit Timmons, Private First Class Robert H. Trimble, and Private First Class Nelson P. Lape.

Sergeant Jenkins, a five sport letterman of Circleville high school still keeps up his athletics in this jungle world with both basketball and baseball.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Perkins, live at 663 East Mound street.

Sergeant Friley is the mess sergeant, and the men of the battery have named his kitchen "Bull's Hash House."

Previous to his enlistment in October of 1940 he was employed by Griffith and Martin. Friley is the son of Mrs. A. M. Fuller who resides at 216 West Mound street.

Corporal Walker, whose mother, Mrs. Lyman Lindsey, lives at 116 Hayward avenue, is a machine gun section chief. His gun crew is credited with knocking down five Jap planes over New Georgia Island.

Private Timmons is a member of the commissary section, he has been in the army since February of 1941.

His wife, Clarabelle, lives on North Court street, Circleville, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Timmons, live in Kingston, Ohio.

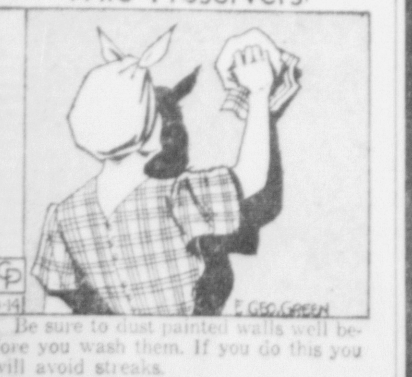

A former employee of Amster Kirtz Wholesale House is Private Robert H. Trimble. During combat he tosses 100 pound shells around with ease. He is the son of Marion Trimble, 154 East Mill street.

Private First Class Nelson P. Lape was inducted in February of 1941 and prior to that he was employed by the Pettit's Electrical Appliance store. Around the battery he is called "Doc," for he is the medical aid man of this unit. He sticks his chest out proudly and says, "I haven't lost a patient yet."

His mother, Mrs. Bertha Lape, lives at 369 East Mill street.

PUBLIC COLORED HOLIDAY LIGHTS AGAIN BANNED

Public Christmas decorations which require lighting will be missing again this year.

Office of War Utilities has notified electric companies that they are prohibited from installing temporary facilities for ornamental or decorative Christmas lighting.

The order was issued following a recommendation by the Solid Fuels Administration for War that fuel savings possible under a continued ban on public Christmas lighting merited the continuation of the ban imposed in previous years.

campaign, was sent to England and was in the first invasion wave on the Normandy coast. He started Army service Oct. 19, 1942.

He was born at Lockbourne, attended school there and South high school in Columbus. He was working at the Fred L. Hunt packing company in Columbus when he was inducted from a Columbus board. His parents moved to Circleville after he went into service.

Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, James, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, Columbus.

Pfc. Redman went overseas in August, 1943, following his induction in February. He served in North Africa and Italy and participated in the invasion of southern France. He was serving with the infantry.

He attended Circleville schools and was working at the government depot in Columbus when he was inducted.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

an ardent Democrat and booster for the League of Nations in 1924, he went to the Chicago Democratic Convention in 1938 to work for the nomination of Newton Baker. But at Chicago, he found that Garner, McAdoo and Jim Farley had got together and no subject interested them less than the cause of world cooperation.
So Willkie concluded with this "Postscript to an Epilogue."
"After these experiences and after the Democratic Party in the middle thirties began to violate the very essence of Wilson's philosophy of government—Government should serve society, by no means rule or dominate it. Government should not be made an end in itself; it is a means only—The state exists for the sake of society, not society for the state—I left the Democratic party—or, perhaps, the Democratic party left me."
A few days later, Josephus Daniels, also wrote a guest column for John Temple Graves, which carried this reply to Willkie:
A POSTSCRIPT TO AN EPILOGUE
I claim a woman's privilege of making the postscript the most important part of a letter. As a disciple of Wilson's ideal, Franklin Roosevelt urged a solemn referendum on the League of Nations when he was candidate for Vice-President in 1920. That was the year when the people voted for Harding and normalcy. This year Roosevelt incarnates the Wilson spirit and his election is the only guarantee of an organization that will insure the permanent outlawry of war. If we fail to secure an effective world organization to end war this time, the robot will look like a child's toy compared with the destructive weapons which will be used if another war curses the world.
PENICILLIN:—1943-1944
WPB, which controls production of penicillin, says more of that wonder drug is being produced in a single month now than was produced in the entire year of 1943. And for once, America has an important drug which is not all wrapped up in monopoly.

In fact, penicillin is being made by several companies which are not drug manufacturers. One of these is a mushroom producer. Explanation is that in producing mushroom spores, this company has become expert in the same processes of fermentation required in making penicillin. Another non-drug company is Charles Pfizer of Brooklyn, whose regular business is making yeast. The fermentation skill involved in that industry has made Pfizer the best U. S. producer of penicillin as things stand today.

Still another producer is Commercial Solvents, whose manufacture of Butyl and ethyl alcohol involves fermentation.

The balance of the penicillin producers are drug companies but even in this group, there are cliques with the spirit of animosity and quarreling which does not go with monopoly.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates that production of penicillin by the end of this year should be about 200,000,000 units a month, indicating a new source of annual income of $50,000,000.

There are brown, red, green and even black honeys, according to an article on the bee business. Zadok Dunkopf says he will stick to his preferences—blond and brunette.
